

Session E31 – Threats of Tomorrow

By Eric Levin

Topic Summary

New vulnerabilities are discovered and published on a daily basis. High profile worms exploiting these vulnerabilities are becoming more and more common. These trends demonstrate that current security controls are insufficient. Controls need to be continuously enhanced to address those new vulnerabilities. Since threats are becoming increasingly automated, automated processes are now necessary to control and track corporate risks.